

♥ to the EARTH First/Journal
(even though they have x a mySpace)

♥ to the Danish squatters

Reproduce freely for non-commercial purposes.
www.tangledwilderness.org

I made it to #10! This comic, less than 3 years old, represents one of the longest projects I've ever done. And one of the most rewarding. Anyhow, I have a challenge - re-draw your favorite SHAFP comic and submit it. Whenever we get around to printing a collection, we'll include our favorites.

Thanks again to everyone who copies and distributes SHAFP!

strangers@riseup.net

Strangers In A Tangled Wilderness has a bunch of new zines -

- from Jimmy T. Hand, we have "The Road To Either-Or", an autobiographical novella, and "The seduction of the Wind", a collection of short stories

- "The Illawen", an adapted myth that gave the bandits name.

- "We don't support the troops" a pamphlet to explain the anarchist case against soldiers

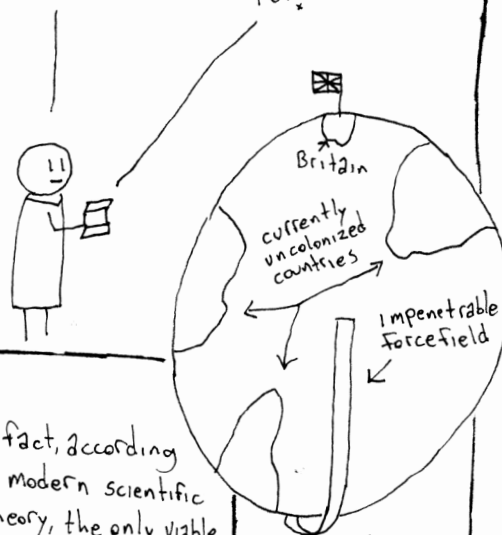

- "Steampunk Magazine" a full size magazine of crazy machinery, fiction, etc.

- More!

www.tangledwilderness.org

Hey there, kids! My name is Dr. Science-O, and today I've got a letter from the staff of the Earth First! Journal.

"Dear Dr. Science-O I was wondering: why can't you go back in time by flying through the time zones at faster than 1 hour per?"

Ah! An excellent question! As you can see in our inlaid diagram, the thing that prevents time travel is the international date line, which is a impenetrable force field that is conveniently located as far from Britain as possible.

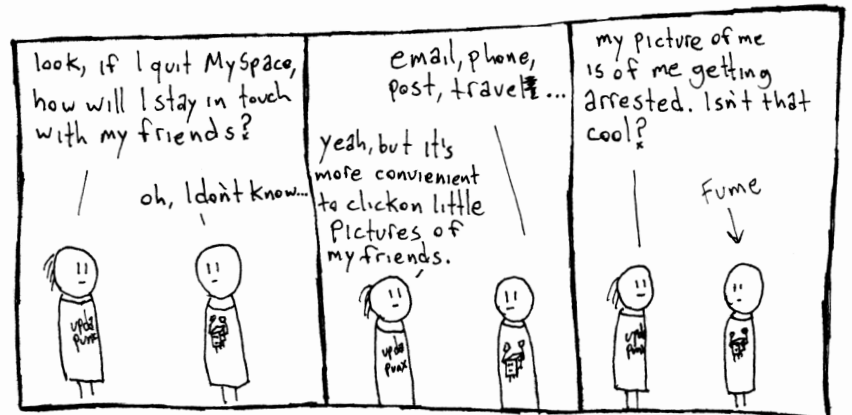

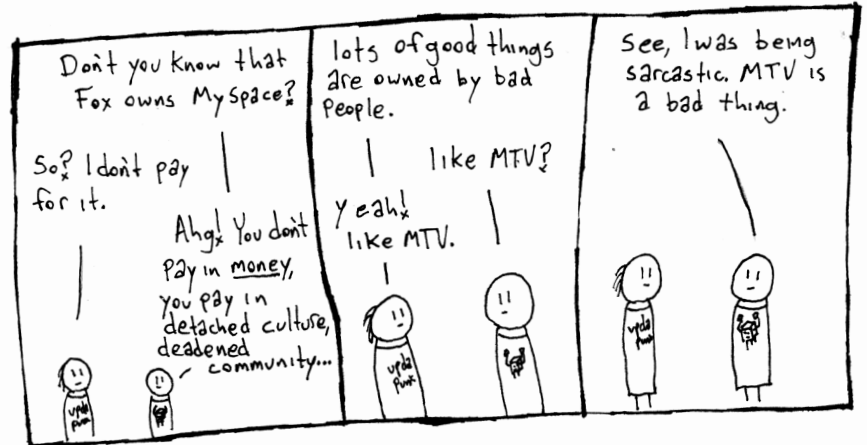

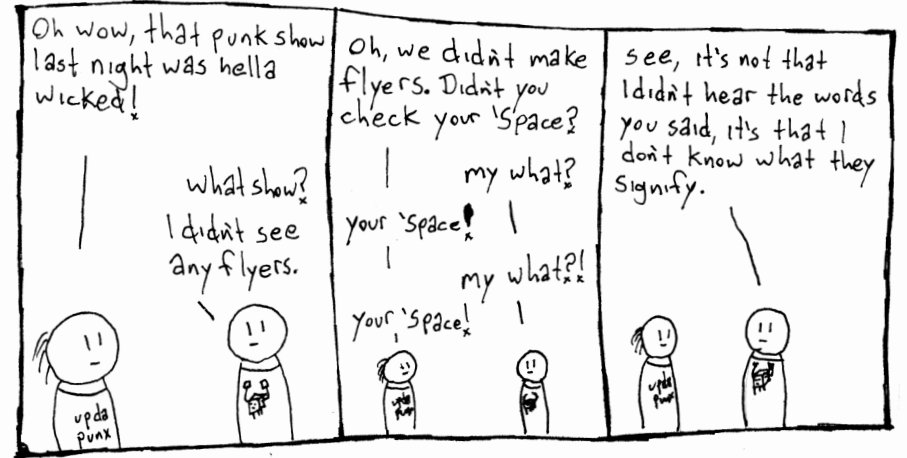

In fact, according to modern scientific theory, the only viable method of time travel is that of flying around the sun.

This would also allow you to kill off humanity before it evolves. Except then you would never have been born, so you wouldn't have been able to go back in time, so you would have been born...

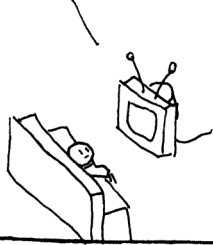

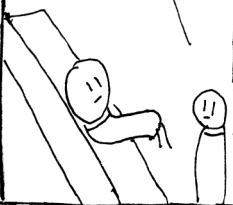

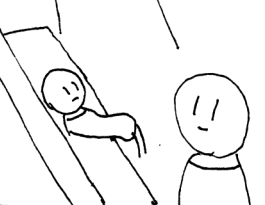

maybe it's best if we just leave it alone, yes?

the anarcho-pirate brigade!

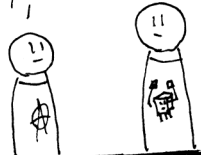

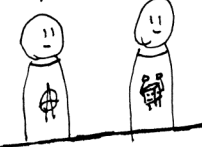

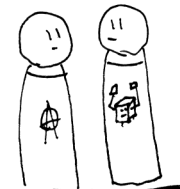

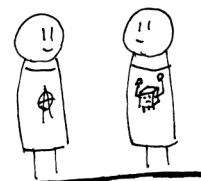

The Rigidly Hierarchical Fascist Discipline Pages!

Fur is coming back in a big way! 	What are you watching? Ads? 	News. Same thing.
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

You will read this panel first. gee, what should we do today? shut up! 	You will read this panel second. Today, you will go to work. When you return home, you will commit direct action with me to further the cause of our nation. 	You will read this panel third. what kind of direct— shut up!
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

Uhg. I was walking downtown and I saw four people in fur coats. It needs to stop. 	well, you know what they say: "direct action gets the goods." 	are "the goods" in this case "opportunities to see yuppies run around with their coats on fire?" well, I was thinking paint, but yeah, fire would do.
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

You will not read this panel. had hard to start your anarchist revolution without electricity! snip 	yawn My clock is out. I wonder what time it is. yup. suns up. 	hmm... no electricity. Guess we forgot to pay again. oh well. oh well.
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

What are you doing? why are you wearing fur? that's not the real question. 	x 	the real question is "what is a yuppie doing walking around in the dead of winter without a coat on?"
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

but what about their property rights? Aren't we supposed to respect property? 	you are confused. nationalism and fascism are not about consistency, but about control. Mussolini defined his government based on whim, not logical guidelines. 	this isn't very funny. there is no "funny" in the right-wing. except hitting people. good point.
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

The Moderately Okay Liberal Guilt Pages!

